USING THE NOVEL STUDY

The novel study can be used in four ways:

- Independent reading at student created paced
- Small group independent reading at student created paced
- Small group reading guided by the teacher
- Whole class reading guided by the teacher

Each chapter or set of chapters has a particular task:

Vocabulary:

Students need to be able to write the definition/meaning of the word in their own words as the word is used in the story. If they are unable to, they need to find the word in the dictionary and match the correct definition with the context that the word is used in the book.

Short response questions:

The questions come in two forms. The first is basic comprehension directly from the story. This is your “Who, What, Where, When, Why and How” question.

The second form is analysis of information and events in the story. The student is required to explain an answer, respond as if they were in the story, or state what they think the character(s) should do.

The remaining sections are key components in studying literature in a detailed and meaningful way. The directions for each part are given within each section.

THE NOVEL STUDY CAN BE PRINTED AND STAPLED AS A PACKET USING THE INTRODUCTION AS THE COVER PAGE.

STUART LITTLE

BY

E.B. WHITE

Stuart is a mouse born into a human family. Unusual as it sounds, the adventures that Stuart encounters make for an unusually fun story. Being the smallest member of the Little family has its advantages and disadvantages. Read how Stuart overcomes the size issue and learns the meaning of family and friendship.

Name _____

PRE-READING ACTIVITY

1. The word “friendship” means something a little different to everyone. Write a paragraph of what friendship means to you.

2. Being a friend sometimes means doing something extraordinary by giving more than you thought you ever could. This could be time, energy, money, or health. Tell about a time where either you or a friend did something for someone else that was extraordinary.

ILLUSTRATING AN EVENT ACTIVITY

Most chapter books are written with very few to no illustrations. Visualizing the events of the story is left to the reader's imagination. On this page, I would like you to illustrate any one of the five problems the Littles were experiencing. Try to do a scene that you feel gave you a clear picture of what was occurring in the story. Underneath your picture write a sentence or two that explains the part of the reading that you drew.

Sequencing events is just that, putting events in correct order from start to finish. On this page, use the first six chapters of the book to help you put these main events in order. Use pencil so you can erase if you need to. Good luck!

- Stuart uses a hammer to turn on the water.
- Stuart Little, a mouse, is born to humans.
- Stuart gets caught in the shade.
- The Littles think Stuart is in the mouse hole.
- Stuart helps get the ring from the drain.
- Stuart rides the Wasp across the pond.
- Stuart helps with lost ping-pong balls and stuck piano keys.

CHARACTER ANALYSIS ACTIVITY

When reading a novel it is very natural for the reader to develop opinions of the characters. You decide which characters you like and dislike, which are funny, and which are sincere. This process is called analyzing characters. A good writer wants the reader to do this. It helps the reader understand the story better and enjoy the story more. It also helps the reader become part of the story in a way because we also compare characters in stories with people we know or have met.

You have really been able to ‘get to know’ Stuart Little in this story. Fill in the chart below about the Stuart’s character traits. When you are done, use one character trait in the chart to write a paragraph about the Stuart’s character. It is important that you include several details from the story to support your choice of trait.

POINT OF VIEW ACTIVITY

Have you ever heard the expression, ‘...walk in someone else’s shoes...’? What that means is looking at a situation or event from someone else’s life. When you read a story, the author is trying to help you imagine what the character is thinking to help you understand why the character did something. Have you ever felt like you wouldn’t have done an event the same way a character did it in a book?

Think about a scene from a movie or television show you have recently watched where a character, or a group of characters, had a point of view that was different than yours for the situation they were in. Fill in the chart below for two separate shows or movies.

Name of the character	What the character did	What you would have done

In chapter ten, Snowbell meets with the Angora cat in the neighborhood. Snowbell attempts to explain to the Angora how he lives with a mouse and a bird. Snowbell and the Angora differ in their views of how a cat should live with a mouse and a bird. In the space below, list all the details that support Snowbell’s point of view for not eating Stuart and Margalo and the Angora’s point of view for why he should eat Stuart.
